Production Overview:

Katya Sourikova's Queen Maud Land is an inspired musical dramatisation of Antarctic explorer Robert Scott's emotional journey on his fateful 1911-1912 expedition. A truly international collaboration, Katya is joined by Grammy award-winning vibraphonist Andrei Pushkarev, premiere European accordionist Ksenija Sidarova, Ruslan Vilensky, the leading Latvian cellist of his generation. Together with German bassist Simon Bauer and Norwegian drummer Ståle Birkeland, this extraordinary ensemble brings the story to life with exquisite musicianship and passionate performances.

The production can be scaled from the core of 6 soloists, to a larger chamber ensemble including strings. This creates the possibility for collaboration with local ensembles and an opportunity for a vocalist and/or narrator. A strong visual narrative is woven into the production, with projected backdrops, acted sequences and extracts from Robert Scott's diaries, immersing the audience in an unforgettable experience.

PERFORMERS

Katya Sourikova

Raised in St Petersburg and London, Katya Sourikova's musical and cultural background has always been diverse. After training as a classical pianist at the prestigious Guildhall School and then the Royal College of Music, she began a long exploration of Jazz, finding a her musical voice somewhere between these two worlds both as a composer and improviser.

In 2004, Katya made her first recordings with Canadian musicians Ivan Bamford and Remi-Jean leBlanc. In 2005, the trio performed at the Baku International Jazz Festival alongside heavyweights such as Joe Zawinul and Greg Osby.

At the Banff Jazz and Creative Music Workshop in 2006, Katya's mentors Dave Douglas and Marilyn Crispell helped her focus her creative energies. The resulting two albums Steps in the Snow and Angels & Satellites were recorded in New York and subsequently released by Weave Records in 2008 and 2010.

In 2011, Weave Records released Katya's third album Ivan's Dream. Recorded in Berlin, the album and resulting live project received critical acclaim, with the Katya Sourikova Group performing at the London Jazz festival in 2011.

Also in 2011, Katya began to rearrange many compositions for chamber music ensembles, thus bringing her journey from her classical roots and through the jazz idiom full circle. This has resulted in two new live projects, Queen Maud Land for chamber ensemble and Jazz Quartet, and Casa Mila for Piano and Cello duet. New releases for these projects are expected in late 2013.

Ksenija Sidorova

Ksenija Sidorova was born in Riga, Latvia, in 1988, and began playing the accordion at the age of 8. Her grandmother had roots in the folk accordion tradition and was keen for the young Ksenija to take up the instrument.

At 16, she moved to London to study at the Royal Academy of Music as she wanted to explore more classical and contemporary repertoire. She now plays a huge range of music, from Bach to Berio, and Scarlatti to Schnittke. Her virtuosic debut album, Classical Accordion, impressed critics and demonstrated the 'serious' side of the accordion.

Sidorova has gathered an impressive collection of awards, and played with guitarist Miloš Karadaglić, Nicola Benedetti, the Sacconi quartet and the Latvian National Symphony Orchestra. She has also performed at numerous international venues including the Wigmore Hall, the Royal Festival Hall and the Lucerne Festival.

Since 1999 Andrei Pushkarev has been a member of the Kremerata Baltica chamber orchestra, under the artistic direction of Gidon Kremer. Pushkarev has performed with musicians such as Yo Yo Ma, Yury Bashmet, Martha Argerich, Julian Rachlin, Gabriela Montero, and Michel Portal, as well as with conductors such as Yury Temirkanov, Voldemar Nelsson, and Roman Kofman.

In 2010, together with Gidon Kremer and the Argentinean bandoneonist Dino Saluzzi, he recorded "Themes from the Songbook" – music from cinema and theater by the Georgian composer Giya Kancheli for the renowned ECM music label.

For several years, Pushkarev has been giving master classes worldwide and has served as member of the jury at various international competitions.
